Stevie Haywood is a resourceful and technically skilled sound engineer who brings the same attention to detail and ability to capture excellent audio whether recording on the run, shooting fast paced documentaries and commercials, or recording performance on the set of a drama or feature film.

His involvement with audio post production through Sounds Simple, his studio in London, has afforded him an understanding and familiarity with current post production workflow, as well as a grasp of on-location issues such as multiple radio mic set ups and performance driven environments, meaning that he can bring a solution orientated approach to production sound that saves time and the need for costly fixes such as ADR.

Stevie's kit includes a range of high-end recording equipment featuring, Sound Devices 788 multi channel recorder, various Schoeps, Sennheiser and Neumann mics, Audio Wireless and Audio Ltd radio mics, suitable for anything from talking heads to feature films.
